Tug Struggling Through Storm To Aid Skipper

"Stay-Put Carlsen" Hangs On For Fifth Day Alone on Ship

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP)—A British tug tonight raced to the rescue of the captain of the U.S. freighter Flying Enterprise, which is wallowing in strong new gales 350 miles out in the Atlantic from Falmouth.

Capt. Kurt Carlsen, who brushed aside with courageous stubbornness suggestions that he abandon the 6,711-ton ship, was spending his fifth night aboard as the vessel drifted helplessly and almost flat on its side.

The deep-sea tug Turmoil, one of Britain's fastest and largest, set out from Falmouth bucking 50-mile-an-hour winds and heavy hail showers. It would not likely reach the Flying Enterprise until late tomorrow.

Officials of the Isbrandtsen Line, the owners, hoped Carlsen still would ride his ship into port, but the savage seas would make the task of getting a tow line aboard extremely difficult.

Carlsen, a veteran of the seas despite his 37 years, declared he would stay aboard "until I'm towed or sunk." He chose to wage his one-man fight against the sea after the worst hurricane in 50 years cracked his ship on Christmas Day. He ordered the crew of 40 and 10 passengers to abandon ship last Friday.

Britons were quick to make the New Jersey captain a hero. The story was headline material in all newspapers."

The Evening Standard dubbed him "Stay-Put Carlsen."

If he left the freighter, it would become a derelict and a "free prize of the sea" for its salvagers under British—Admiralty law in the view set forth by experts in London.

In New York, however, an Isbrandtsen Line spokesman declared "It makes no difference one way or the other" in salvage right whether Carlsen stays aboard—any salvager would receive compensation set by an arbitration committee of the insurance firm, Lloyds of London.

Capt. Clayton McLaughlin, operating manager, said Carlsen's following "traditions of the sea" and not business reasons in staying aboard.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica's article on salvage states: "Where the salvaged vessel has been abandoned by her master and crew and is therefore derelict, the salvage awards run much higher than otherwise."

Patrols Step Up Pace at Front

SEOUL, Jan. 3 (Thursday) (AP).—Patrol actions stepped up slightly Wednesday as the weather moderated along the 145-mile battle front.

Allied and Communist patrols exchanged fire in several minor clashes. Most of the action was in the east.

An Eighth Army staff officer said Communist losses during December were estimated at 16,441. This was a sharp decline from November when the U.N. claimed it inflicted 44,729 casualties on the Reds.

Flames Destroy Hangar, Three Planes at Trenton

TRENTON, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)—The air force said tonight that a fire that burned down No. 3 storage hangar at the R.C.A.F.'s No. 6 repair depot late today destroyed at least three planes and caused damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

It was reported earlier that loss might run as high as $2,000,000 and that seven planes had been burned. However, an air force spokesman said it had been definitely established that two Lancaster bombers and a Grumman Goose amphibian were destroyed. A crane used to hoist aircraft was destroyed.

One or two other planes possibly were in the hangar, the spokesman said.

None of the planes could be removed from No. 9 hangar, as the blaze had made too much headway by the time it was discovered.

Two neighboring hangars were scorched. Planes were removed from them as a precautionary measure.

An official inquiry into the cause of the fire was launched.

The alarm was turned in by WO2 Russ Chessum, who spotted the fire while patrolling the air station nine miles west of Belleville.

"I knew it was gone as soon as I spotted the flames," Chessum said later.

The destroyed hangar was used for receiving aircraft brought in from various parts of Canada and for storage of ferry-duty aircraft.

During the blaze, a number of barrels of oil in the hangar exploded, along with several barrels of high-grade coal oil. However, the air force spokesman denied a report that there were explosions of high-octane gasoline.

In Ottawa an air force headquarters official said tonight that the fire was a "serious, regrettable loss, but not a major disaster."

He said the air force has followed a "dispersal" policy and has set up other repair depots across the country.

"We are still in business," he added. "The loss, while regrettable, is not a crippling blow."

Noted U.S. Sculptor, Jo Davidson Dies, 68

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP).—Word was received here tonight of the death in France of sculptor Jo Davidson. He was 68.

A son, Jacques, said he had received a cryptic cable from his stepmother, saying Davidson died this afternoon. He was given no details.

He was unable to get a call through to France immediately.

Nate Bienstock, who handles Davidson's business affairs, said Davidson had suffered severe heart attacks frequently. However, he said there was no indication he had been ill recently.

He had returned to France from Israel December 20, Bienstock said, and had planned to go to his estate near Sache, France.

Davidson, one of America's leading sculptors, had portrayed some of the world's greats. His last job was last month when he did busts of Israeli leaders, including President Chaim Weizmann, Premier David Ben Gurion and Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett. Earlier ones included Franklin D. Roosevelt, Albert Einstein and Will Rogers.

Davidson became interested in politics through the Artists and Writers' Committee for Roosevelt in 1944. In 1947, he was co-chairman of the Progressive Citizens of America and later honorary chairman of the group. He was among the co-chairman of the Wallace-for-President committee in 1948.

Peninsula's First 1952 Twins

Complete absence of prizes for New Year's baby sheep failed to discourage this Suffolk Down ewe. Her contribution to 1952 was this set of twins, and she's obviously just as proud of them as if they weren't obviously black sheep. The three belong to Mr. and Mrs. John Whitehead of West Saanich Road. Early Wednesday morning Mr. Whitehead noticed his sheep—four ewes and a ram—were out of their pasture. When he rounded them up one was missing. A brief search disclosed the addition to his flock. Colonist photographer Bud Kinsman and Mrs. Whitehead had trouble posing the family for this picture. The ewe, suspicious of the whole thing, kept pushing between the camera and her offspring.

Montreal Floods Subside

MONTREAL, Jan. 2 (CP).—Civic officials of Montreal's inundated north-end communities flanking the Riviere des Prairies reported tonight a drop of 20 inches in flood levels during the day and said immediate danger of further flooding is over.

However, Mayor Rosario Fortin of Riviere des Prairies, hardest hit of three ice-battered and water-logged towns, warned residents to remain on the alert.

It is believed the sudden lowering of levels was caused by the shifting of ice jams following several days of unseasonably mild weather.

At the height of the flood, which began to make itself felt around Christmas time, between 200 and 300 homes were damaged and some 80 to 100 families evacuated.

Said an official: "The evacuated families are beginning to move back into their homes and there is no longer an immediate need for emergency headquarters.

Meanwhile, Quebec government engineers today began a three-day chore of measuring the thickness of ice formations to determine where further blasting, if required, should be conducted.

Child Injured By Air Rifle

Four-and-one-half-year-old Marlene Wolcoski, 2819 Quesnel, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday afternoon after being hit in the eye with a pellet from a child's air rifle.

Hospital authorities said last night that the seriousness of the injury had not been determined.

The gun belonged to Darrell Smith, 14, of Topaz Camp.

Truce Talks Stall On Thorny Issues

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 3 (Thursday) (AP).—Truce teams waded into another round of meetings today but apparently drew no closer to agreement on the troublesome prisoner exchange and armistice supervision issues.

The sub-committee on truce supervision adjourned after 2½ hours until tomorrow. A dispatch from the meeting site of Panmunjom said it still was deadlocked over the unyielding Communist stand for unrestricted right to rebuild military airfields in North Korea during an armistice.

There was no early announcement of the Communist reply in a second sub-committee meeting to an Allied compromise proposal on exchange of prisoners of war and others.

But the Reds already had indicated their opposition to the Allied plan for an all-out exchange of prisoners, interned civilians and displaced Koreans.

Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby, Allied negotiator in the prisoner-exchange talks, said the new United Nations' Command proposal would:

1. Exchange 11,559 or more Allied prisoners for an equal number of captured North Koreans and Chinese troops.

2. Swap about 105,000 more Korean and Chinese prisoners on a man-for-man basis with South Korean civilians held by the Reds.

3. Turn the floodgates loose for an all-for-all exchange of thousands of other displaced civilians caught in the backwash of the Korean war when opposing forces swept up and down the peninsula in 1950 and 1951.

4. All repatriations shall be on a strictly voluntary basis, with International Red Cross teams making sure that no one is sent back against his will.

Surrounding Municipalities Add Load To Civic Officials, Justice Comments

The fact that Victoria is surrounded by three corporate municipalities places a greater burden on those who must handle its civic affairs, Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane said yesterday following the swearing-in of Mayor Claude L. Harrison and the 1952 city council.

"A group of gentlemen many years ago in their wisdom saw fit to incorporate the surrounding municipalities. The burden on Victoria is now greater because of it," His Lordship told those assembled for the ceremony.

He said that although "the traditions of my office normally precluded political commentary, he felt it just to "make these few observations" concerning the task before the new council.

"The office of mayor, in my opinion, is a most important one. The aldermen are called upon to give the highest service to the community," he said.

This was particularly true, Mr. Justice Macfarlane continued, of Victoria, which has the "added burden of maintaining the position of provincial capital" yet is deprived of much of the revenue ordinarily received by other cities.

The city's elected representatives, he said, are expected to give almost "clairvoyant consideration" to civic problems.

The judge then observed that in his opinion the public did not "as a general rule take the interest in civic affairs we should."

"I hope in the coming years, the citizens will take much more interest," he said. He added that Mayor Harrison with his long experience at the bar "will be in a better position" to induce a greater interest in city business.

He congratulated the new mayor, five aldermen, two school trustees and police commissioner on their elections and wished each a happy new year.

The judge then stepped down from the bench and presented the official seal of office to Mayor Harrison and shook hands with each of the elected representatives.

"Your advice, my Lord, is the finest advice you could give us," stated the mayor in a brief reply to Mr. Justice Macfarlane.

Canada Will Make Supersonic Plane

Avro Company to Make Jet Capable of 700 M.P.H. Speed

OTTAWA, Jan. 2 (CP)—Canada has decided to plan production of a supersonic jet fighter aircraft for her own needs and for possible sale to other countries, a defense production source disclosed tonight.

The top-secret plan is to have the plane designed and produced at the Avro Aircraft Company at Malton, Ont., manufacturers of the CF-100 all-weather jet fighter for the R.C.A.F.

Funds to assist in the development of the plane to travel faster than sound will be provided by the federal government.

The supersonic jet will be dart-shaped and with wings swept so far back that they will form part of the main fuselage.

When built, it will travel at more than 700 miles per hour, the speed of sound, and may reach maximum speeds of more than 1,000 miles per hour.

Indications are that the design will be along British lines, but with special features to meet Canadian flying conditions.

Eventually the new jet, if and when produced, will replace the CF-100 as a front-line aircraft for the R.C.A.F.

Preliminary discussions and planning have been going on secretly for about a year.

The official hope is that Canada may be able to produce a supersonic fighter that may find a market in other countries, thus helping to shoulder the burden of production costs which are expected to be high if Canada produces the jet for the R.C.A.F. alone.

No time has been set for actual production. Planning may take another year or more.

Strike Threat Lessens

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 2 (AP)—The danger of any imminent industry-wide steel strike practically vanished tonight on the eve of a specially-summoned C.I.O. Steelworkers Union convention.

Philip Murray, president of both the C.I.O. and the Steelworkers' Union, broadly hinted to reporters that the union's officers will recommend indefinite postponement of the strike.

Murray told a press conference that the union's powerful 35-man executive board, at a meeting today, unanimously decided on a recommendation for the convention.

He said he expects to be in Washington next Monday for initial wage stabilization board hearings on the union's wage and other demands.

Murray added that he hoped the W.S.B. would expedite handing down a recommended compromise on the union's 18½-cent hourly wage increase request and other demands.

The W.S.B. won't handle a case while a strike is on. Thus, it seemed certain the union has no plans for going ahead with its strike.

Churchill Friendly To Spain

PARIS, Jan. 2 (INS).—High-ranking western informants disclosed today that Prime Minister Churchill has informed France that Britain is planning friendlier relations with Spain.

The same diplomatic sources reported the British Prime Minister, during his recent visit to Paris, strongly encouraged the French government to adopt a similar policy toward Madrid.

It was expected the reported improvement in relations will follow the negotiations for a U.S.-Spanish aid pact, which are scheduled to begin within two weeks.

The western powers returned ambassadors to Madrid after a lengthy diplomatic boycott. But Britain and France until now have frowned on proposals for a U.S. military pact with Generalissimo Franco's government.

The U.S. would like to see Spanish air and naval bases improved and placed at the disposal of American forces.

Official to Investigate Charge of Forced Labor

ISMAILIA, Suez Canal Zone, Jan. 2 (Reuters).—A representative of the International Labor Organization arrived today at the headquarters of Gen. Sir George Erskine, commander of British troops in Egypt, to investigate Egyptian charges that Britain is using forced labor in the canal zone.

Dr. Raghunath Rao, I.L.O. assistant director, lunched with Erskine, for whose death a Cairo newspaper recently offered a $2,800 reward, and then left for Port Said. He will begin a probe of the Egyptian charges Friday.

He said his first step was to insure co-operation from both British and Egyptian officials during the investigation.

The Egyptians claim the Britons are forcing Egyptians and persons of other nations to work for them in canal zone army garrisons. Terrorist bands have threatened fellow-Egyptians who co-operate with the troops.

The result is that British troops are running trains, laundries and messes, officers are making their own beds and laborers are being brought in from other Middle East points.

In the canal zone all was quiet today after a night in which terrorists blew a three-foot gap in a railroad track near Suez and fired on a British hospital at Tel-El-Kebir.

Fund Passes $2,500 Mark

The Korean cigarette fund shot past the $2,500 mark yesterday as more generous Victorians contributed a total of $31 as New Year's gifts for servicemen.

The fund now stands at $2,502.34.

With $100 in hand from a generous citizen who promised $100 to make an even $1,000 after each $900 had been contributed, the fund now has less than $400 to go to meet its $3,000 objective.

Why not join the growing list of fund donors today? Every dime donated sends 20 rigarettes to Canadian servicemen in Korea.

Plane-Building Report Termed Error, Sham

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP).—Canadian Aviation, monthly magazine published in Toronto by Maclean-Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd., says in its current issue that an October announcement that production of trainer planes had started at Fort William was "a gross error if not a deliberate sham."

The magazine, of which Ronald A. Keith is editor, says in its January editorial that, two months after a ceremony in which production minister C. D. Howe took part, there still is not a single post-war Harvard from Fort William anywhere near the flight stage.

A story from Fort William Oct. 28, carried by The Canadian Press, said Mr. Howe and other officials were in that city "to see the first Harvard test flown and to inspect for Canadian Car & Foundry Company plant."

The magazine editorial says:

"The trainers acclaimed at the Canadian Car plant Oct. 27 and put through their flying paces for the visitors were, without exception, assembled from war surplus or "shelf" components . . . freighted to Fort William and bolted together on the assembly line there."

Liberal Parley Set for April

VANCOUVER, Jan. 3 (Thursday) (CP).—A Vancouver newspaper says today in a front-page story that a full-scale convention of the British Columbia Liberal party will be held in April.

"The party gathering will be ordered at the session of the provincial executive, which meets here next Tuesday and Wednesday," the story adds.

A convention is mandatory if at least 10 constituencies submit resolutions calling for one, and the newspaper says it has learned that "14 such resolutions have already been received by the resolutions committee.

"That means there must be a convention," the story says.

New City Officials Take Oath of Office

Listening intently to the solemn oath of office being read by Ald. Mrs. Margaret Christie, Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane presides over yesterday's swearing in ceremony in Supreme Court chambers. Seated at the extreme left, next to Ald. Mrs. Christie, is Mayor Claude L. Harrison who has just finished taking the oath. With their backs to the camera are the other aldermen, school trustees and police commissioner waiting their turn. (See story, Page 13.)—(Colonist photos by Bud Kinsman.)

With a testament in his right hand, Mayor Claude L. Harrison reads the oath of office at the swearing-in ceremony in Supreme Court chambers yesterday. Looking on is Deputy Court Registrar Ralph Baker who acted as court clerk for the proceedings. Mr. Justice Macfarlane called the ceremony "a most pleasing duty for me to perform this morning."

ALLABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

Langford Lake had frozen to a distance of about 25 feet from shore, well past the end of the float. Mong the Siamese cat picked his way down the slope and lowered one paw to the ice.

A few days before, he and his two companions, the black cat and the trout-colored cat, had met snow for the first time in their short lives, and after proper investigation, pronounced it a friendly element.

Ice, however, was something different. A surface that had been wet and yielding now appeared to be hard and smooth. Mong withdrew the paw, then put it down again and took another step. Goodness knows what passed through his small mind. Perhaps he felt a sense of insecurity. When a fixed and permanent feature of the landscape suddenly turns into something else, what is there left to believe?

Since he was a cat and not a neurotic human being, however, the Siamese set out to adjust to the new situation in a feline way. He padded several more cautious steps until he stood about a cat's length from shore.

Then he tried to move faster, and found that his claws were no use. He slid, nearly lost his balance and drew himself up in an angry arch, with his back and tail bristling. Mong was furious with his environment. He couldn't quite understand what it had done to him.

The sensation must have been uncomfortable, because cats depend so much on their claws. But Mong found his way and soon pranced along crabwise and sprinted back and forth with a kind of high-stepping grace.

The little black cat followed him, and mastered the new surface quite daintily. She stalked small birds, made a futile, low-slung sally in the direction of some ducks, then grew tired of those activities and began running.

At the end of the run she slid. Believe it or not, she liked the feeling, and repeated the experiment, leaving long slide-marks behind her. Once or twice she struck a soggy patch and walked away, shaking her paws.

Then the big trout-colored cat came padding heavily and confidently along the ice. He pulled himself up on the limbs of the overhanging willow tree. Presently all three cats were scrambling through the branches and lowering themselves to the ice again.

The black cat and the Siamese crept down to the lowest twigs and tested the ice for safety before lowering themselves; but the big trout-colored cat merely jumped down. We could hear the ice crack slightly under his weight.

All three chased one another madly back and forth, sliding and batting at pieces of stick. Once the black cat paw-handled a fragment along like a hockey player.

A pair of fat Canada geese, regular morning visitors, glided to the edge of the ice. The cats stiffened. We attempted to throw some chunks of bread past the edge, within reach of the geese, but one big piece lodged on the very edge. All the cats started out to get it. The geese stayed where they were.

Something must have told the cats that the edge was unsafe. They moved very, very gingerly. For a minute I was treated to a sight I shall probably never see again—three little cats in a row and two wild geese staring at one another on the border of the ice. Then the Siamese grabbed the bread and made away with it, and the picture was broken.

After dark the black cat fell through, managed to scramble through breaking ice to the float and fled. After two hours she crept into the house, wet and scared.

Slander Suit Filed Against Senator

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP).—Charles E. Davis of Pasadena, Calif., today filed a $100,000 suit against Senator Joe McCarthy (Rep., Wis.). He charged slander and breach of contract.

McCarthy told a reporter the suit was "too ridiculous to require comment."

Davis' petition, filed in U.S. district court here, said he entered into a verbal contract with McCarthy Sept. 25, 1949, to obtain "certain valuable information" for McCarthy about state department employees in Europe.

Davis, a negro, recited that he carried out his part of the agreement until November, 1950, when he was arrested in Geneva. At that time, Davis said, McCarthy disclaimed any association with or employment of Davis.

The Swiss court convicted Davis on charges of political espionage on behalf of the senator, sentenced him to eight months in prison and ordered him expelled from the country. Since he had already served 11 months in jail while awaiting trial, he was deported immediately last October.

Snow Strands 100 Near Pincher Creek

PINCHER CREEK, Alta., Jan. 2 (CP).—Government snowplows and reserve army equipment today rescued more than 100 persons from snowbound automobiles in this southern Alberta district.

Several towns in the Lethbridge area were isolated for a brief period by drifting snow as winds reached velocities as high as 54 miles an hour. The traffic tie-up was described as one of the worst experienced in the district.

Supply Ship at Northern Port of Call

U.S. Urges Aid in Fight Against Red Aggression

PARIS, Jan. 2 (CP).—The United States today urged that more United Nations members aid in the fight against aggression, particularly in Korea.

Britain, Australia and Belgium voiced support for further U.N. collective measures against any aggression as proposed in a resolution put forward by 11 countries, including the United States and Canada.

But Sweden said she could not take part in collective action which might involve her in a major war. The Swedish delegate, however, found no objection to the technical aspects of the collective measures committee report on which the resolution is based.

Canada had a part in shaping that report which would permit the U.N. to ask regional pact forces, such as the North Atlantic Treaty armies, for help in event of aggression.

The Soviet delegate, Andrei Vishinsky, is expected to loose a blast at the Western Powers when the debate on collective measures, one of the top items before the current General Assembly, comes up tomorrow.

Ben Cohen, U.S. delegate, told the U.N. political committee today that his country wants more help in sharing the "burden and sacrifice" of the Korean conflict, even if there is an armistice.

Cohen pointed to the U.N. force in Korea as an example of collective action and told the 60-nation committee:

"It is a matter of self-interest for each of us to contribute to any such action as much as we can . . .

"We must all hope and pray that an armistice will soon be arranged in Korea. Not only will this end the suffering and bloodshed; it will mark the first time in history that an aggressor has been forced to abandon his adventure by the collective action of an international organization. . . . If, despite all our efforts, an armistice is refused, renewed efforts, including military, will be essential to meet continued

U.K. Police Recover Stolen Fur Coats

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP).—Police today recovered 11 women's fur coats stolen from the home of Lt.-Col. Martin Charteris, assistant private secretary to Princess Elizabeth. The coats, valued at £4,000, were the property of guests attending a New Year's party at Charteris' house. Police said they arrested a peddler in connection with the case.

British Grate Under Fire; Heated Debate Blazes Up

LONDON, Jan. 2 (CP).—With wintry air adding urgency to the argument, public debate continued today on a burning question, what to do about the Englishman's stubborn love for a cheery, open fire.

Skeptics say Britain is senselessly smoking herself to economic suicide through the glowing coals in 12,000,000 family fireplaces.

The debate leaped into flame when a British professor, F. E. Simon, claimed that Britain could save at least 100,000 tons of coal a year by proper methods in industry and in the home. The blaze brightened when two Conservative members of parliament wrote a 24-page pamphlet on the need for making coal work harder.

"Today a Canadian tossed another brand on the hearth. In a letter heading The Manchester Guardian's correspondence columns, H. S. Ferns of Birmingham said that coming from Winnipeg he had been "shocked" by the way Britain wastes heat.

Ferns, remarking on Britain's "fetishes about open fires, fresh air and draughts," urges a two-fold attack on waste heat through greater insulation and improved housing construction, plus forced draughts and automatic firing of furnaces and stoves.

The Canadian letter follows publication of an article by Professor Simon, stressing that cheap coal and plenty of it made Britain great. Now it is expensive and hard to get.

Diamond Magnate Leaves DeBeers

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP).—A Canadian-born geologist who followed his own theories of diamond mining to fabulous wealth let his marketing agreement with the world diamond syndicate lapse Tuesday, amid speculation he may try to break the syndicate's monopoly on gem trading.

I. C. Chopra, legal adviser to Dr. John T. Williamson said Williamson "has not renewed his diamond sales agreement with De Beers." It expired midnight Monday.

"Future sales policy is very confidential and I can say no more now, but an announcement may be made at any time," Chopra said.

Chopra's comment lent fresh support to speculation that Williamson, once of Montreal, may be planning to break the tight diamond market wide open by selling the output of his fabulously rich diamond mine at Mwadui, Tanganyika, at his own prices.

New Year Babies Born in Dead Heat

By The Canadian Press

Canada's first babies of the new year appear to have been born in a dead heat.

As midnight finished ringing in various time zones across the country, babies were greeting the new world and the new year in Toronto, Windsor and Winnipeg.

Because of time zone differences, babies born in Newfoundland and in the Atlantic Time Zone, comprising part of the Maritime provinces, necessarily are born first in point of actual time.

Thus in Sydney, N.S., Mrs. Walter Whitley gave birth to a nine-pound, six-ounce boy, nine minutes after midnight A.S.T. and nearly one hour before the new year reached the Eastern Time Zone.

Five minutes later in Moncton, N.B., Dr. R. A. Auffray, who delivered the first baby in Canada last year, performed a Caesarian operation on Mrs. Louise Poirer of Shediac Bridge, N.B. The Poirer's daughter arrived at 12.14 a.m. A.S.T.

An eight-pound daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Chartrand on the stroke of midnight in Montreal, but this was almost an hour later on Eastern Standard Time.

In Toronto and Windsor, Ont., a second later, babies were born before the new year whistles and bells stopped ringing. Both cities now claim to have the first babies born in Ontario this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald McAuley are the parents of the Windsor baby, a boy. The first arrival in Toronto was a girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dew.

Three minutes after the new year reached the Central Time Zone, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chupa of Winnipeg became the parents of an eight-pound five-ounce son. The runner-up was clocked in five minutes later.

Heather Jean Durie, first child of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Durie, was the first baby born in Calgary. She arrived 15 seconds after midnight, Mountain Standard Time.

Nurses used stop-watches to determine the winner in Vancouver. A seven-pound, four-ounce boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hoss one second after the new year reached the west coast.

Half a second later, by stop-watch, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith became the parents of a boy in the same hospital.

Author Wins Sam Spade

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2 (INS).—Federal Judge William C. Mathes, in a far-reaching decision, ruled today that a fictional brainchild belongs to its author.

The ruling that an author was entitled to use his characters in another medium was handed down after Warner Brothers' studio had sued author Dashiell Hammett over his "private eye" radio character, Sam Spade.

The studio, which produced "The Maltese Falcon" from Hammett's novel of the same title, charged that the author had no right to sell rights to a radio serial based on the exploits of the novel's hero.

Bring Bodies Of Crash Dead From Peak

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 2 (AP).—The sad and difficult task of removing the bodies of 28 victims of an air force C-47 crash from an Arizona mountainside began today.

An evacuation team of airmen struggled up the lee side of 7,000-foot Armor Mountain this morning and found the mangled bodies among the scattered wreckage of the twin-engine plane.

The victims were 19 West Point cadets, four crew members and five other military passengers. Their plane became lost in a storm Sunday and smashed into the mountain, 65 miles northeast of Phoenix. The C-47 exploded upon striking a cliff about 100 feet below Armer's snow-capped crest.

It probably will take two or three days to bring all the bodies down.

The evacuation team started sending the bodies down the mountainside on pack horses. The trail winds across streams studded with ice-coated rocks and threads through scrub oak near the summit and pines and large oaks lower down.

New Zealand Linked by Air

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Jan. 2 (CP).—Canadian Pacific Airlines' new south Pacific air service through New Zealand to Australia completed its first Canada-New Zealand link today when the aircraft Empress of Auckland touched down at Auckland.

The aircraft was met by a welcoming party headed by E. Winstone, president of the Auckland Chamber of Commerce.

Funeral Held For Litvinoff

MOSCOW, Jan. 2 (AP).—Pallbearers chosen from among high officials of the Russian foreign ministry today carried the remains of Maxim Litvinoff to his grave among Russia's great.

There was no religious service for the former commissar of foreign affairs who played the leading Soviet role in re-establishing diplomatic relations with the United States after the Bolshevik revolution. Born a Jew, Litvinoff did not belong to any church. He died Dec. 31.

Deputy foreign minister Andrei Gromyko led the group of official mourners and acted as a pallbearer. Deputy foreign ministers Valerian Zorin and F. T. Gusev also were pallbearers.

Oddities

WALTHAM, Mass., Jan. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Hazel J. Cowan, 33, Hawthorne, N.Y., woman who demanded gasoline at the police station, today pleaded innocent to charges of drunkenness and driving under the influence of liquor.

Police testified she drove up to the gas pump in rear of this city's police station Tuesday and ordered, "Fill it up."

When no service was forthcoming, continued the police account, the woman demanded, "What kind of a station is this?"

Police showed her by locking her up in it.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Jan. 2 (AP).—An escaped live monkey in the engine-room of a steamship here is acting like a monkey wrench in the works.

The American President Lines freighter President Arthur can't sail until the beast is caught. Line officials fear he might get into the machinery or distract crew members working near moving parts of the engine.

They have sent out the word to get him "dead or alive"—preferably alive.

Is the Power Saw Gaining?

ALTHOUGH British Columbia logging camps were subject last summer to one of the longest closures on record due to fire hazard, the prediction of Hon. E. T. Kenney that the official scale of timber cut may reach 5,500,000,000 board feet before the end of the fiscal period at March 31 next is interesting. If this proves to be the case, British Columbia will be cutting its softwood stands at a rate three times faster than the natural regeneration of these forests, and this under a forest management policy. What has become of that policy, or shouldn't we ask? In spring it was said that less than 3 per cent of crown lands were under forest management licenses. What is the position now?

It would appear from the figures cited by the Minister of Lands and Forests that the power saw is gaining heavily in this see-saw between annual cut and natural regrowth. Bear in the mind that it will require a century to replace cut-over lands with even a semblance of mature timber, and British Columbia would seem to be dipping heavily into the years as well. It is a fact that artificial replacement, while helpful, is too costly to take the place of natural regeneration in what may well be a long interval between an unrestricted and a limited annual cut. In theory, forest management would replace its cropping in perpetual cycles; but even the theory applies only to a small fraction of this provnice's crown timber resources. It sounds well to say that 10,000,000 seedling trees have been freshly planted, but they, obviously, are for the next century.

Meanwhile, the existing timber stock on the shelves is being systematically lowered at three times the rate of natural, or even possible, replacement. Bad as were the days of "clear" logging and the removal of even seed trees from the ground, it is to the power saw that history may point in explanation of annual cuts of 5,500,000,000 board feet in a 10-month operating period. For more than a decade British Columbia has been cutting its timber at twice its rate of regrowth. The lengthening of the odds against natural regeneration to more than three to one may make a splash in statistics, but it is nothing to cheer over when one examines the position on the ground. Where are we heading?

Holding the Aces

FOR six months now, surely the longest truce talk in history, United Nations and Red enemy negotiators have been cross-bargaining with a view to arranging a cease-fire in Korea. After a mountain of arguments the truce is not yet even in sight. So many new angles are injected daily that one almost doubts it ever will be.

The U.N. command negotiator complains that the Reds assume the attitude of a victor during the talks, which should not be surprising. The Allies have been at a disadvantage from the start. It was Russia's Jacob Malik, acting as an ostensible neutral, who proposed last June that the belligerents should get together to work out a truce. But it was the U.N. that picked up the hint, not Red Korea or Red China.

This put the U.N. in the position of seeking the cease fire, and thus in a psychological sense of seeking a favor from the enemy. The Communists are ever quick to seize an initiative once it is handed to them, and they have been holding the ace cards since the talks started. They know, for instance, that the U.N.'s limited and inhibited objective in the Korean campaign practically rules out the chance of a complete U.N. victory in the field. They are thus able to treat the U.N. as a supplicant.

Whether the Red Chinese really want a truce is anyone's guess, since unlike their opponents their policies are not broadcast and made into political footballs that hamper the military effort. What seems apparent is that the Reds are prepared to hum and haw indefinitely for their own, always mysterious, purposes. They may be in no better military position than we are but if not they keep this secret to themselves. On the other hand almost every nuance of our policies is bared for their information.

What the truce talks have done in the interim, however, is to slow down the fighting, a good thing in itself for the men in the field. Beyond that these prolonged negotiations merely add to the general unenviable position of the United Nations in Korea. It is no wonder at all that the Red Chinese assume the attitude of victory, even though this will never be conceded.

The Growth of Scouting

STATISTICS recently compiled to show the increased interest taken in scouting in Canada have been received with much pride and satisfaction by the British Columbia provincial executive of the Boy Scouts' Association. The figures indicate that in the past 10 years British Columbia led all the rest of the Dominion by a very wide margin in scout membership gains.

The statistics were worked out to provide a comparison of scout membership with population increases from the census of 1941 to that of last year. They show that British Columbia and the Yukon, grouped together, with a population increase of 41.2 per cent were able to increase their Boy Scout membership by 95 per cent. The Dominion membership gain of 36.8 per cent, compared with a total population increase of 17.6 per cent, shows how far the growth of the scouting movement has exceeded the country's gain in population.

Obviously there must be a very real interest in scouting, to produce such encouraging statistics. In British Columbia it is fair to attribute much of the success to the calibre and enthusiasm of the executive council and commissioners. Of course the real strength of Canada's Boy Scout movement everywhere is the selfless and continuous service of those hundreds and hundreds of volunteer leaders, men and women, who give their time to assist the work. As is well known, almost all work in the interest of scouting is voluntary. In British Columbia and the Yukon, for example, exclusive of a very small number of paid office workers, there are only eight salaried field men. The increase in the scouting movement and its value in providing a useful, healthy interest for boys, are out of all proportion to the cost of maintaining the organization.

Raising Confidence in Sterling

By JOHN KINGSLEY, from London

WHILE the reopening of the London foreign exchange market after 12 years' closure is an important part of the United Kingdom government's policy of restoring its prewar functions to the city, two facts must be stressed. In no way does it mean the freedom of the pound sterling. Nor does it mean revaluation of sterling. It is a technical change only and there is no alteration in British external financial policy. Sterling remains linked to the U.S.A. dollar at 2.80 to the pound, to gold at £12½ per ounce, and to other currencies at their previous parities. An important aspect of the change is, however, that it should help to reduce speculation in sterling.

What has happened is that forward rates of exchange have been freed and they can now fluctuate in accordance with supply and demand. At the same time the spread on spot rates has been widened, but only to within one per cent either way of parities in accordance with international monetary fund rules. The central bank—the Bank of England—will decide the extent of the spread. Of the new spot rates already announced, the U.S.A. dollar is 2.78 to 2.82, the French franc 972 to 988 and the Dutch guilder 10.56 to 10.72.

From the point of view of the British subject, there will not be free and unfettered dealings in currencies. All exchange restrictions covering trade, commercial, tourist and other activities continue in force, as also do all existing import and export licensing regulations. The currencies mainly affected by the new arrangement are what are called the "specified" ones, which are the U.S.A. and Canadian dollars, the Swiss franc, currencies of the French, Dutch and Belgian monetary areas, Portuguese escudos, Brazilian cruzeires, Argentine and Uruguayan pesos, Panamanian dollars, Syrian and Lebanese pounds and Indo-Chinese piastres.

Another important change affects spot transactions. The Bank of England will continue to publish daily telegraphic transfer rates for all the specified currencies and for the Swedish, Norwegian and Danish currencies, and will deal at such rates. Spot rates will not be widened until an agreement has been reached with the central banks of the countries concerned.

So far as the London market in its reconstituted form is concerned, it is, for the present anyhow, only a fraction of its prewar size and is limited to authorized dealers. During the past 12 years of "official" handling, staffs got largely dispersed. But, as the reopening has shown, the old skill and technique have not been lost. The fact that authorized dealers, which are most of the joint stock banks, are being encouraged to deal within the limits of the spot rates and being given greater freedom in running open positions should help the market to broaden and get down quickly to quoting close rates for both spot and forward. Open positions in spot or forward can be run, subject to agreement with the Bank of England. The limits put on the amount of spot balances which can be held against forward liabilities in specified currencies can only be exceeded by an agreement with the Bank of England.

A valuable result of the new technique should be a reduction in losses which foreign speculators have been putting on official foreign currency reserves. Previously the Bank of England offered—on behalf of the exchange equalization account—to buy and sell forward currencies at fixed rates, which were the spot rates plus or minus a small interest charge. The outcome was that the exchange account always bought currencies which were weak in relation to the pound and which speculators wanted to exchange for sterling. On the other hand, Americans and Canadians holding sterling convertible into dollars could demand forward dollars. The exchange account thus was liable to risks due to speculation. Now that fixed rates have been abolished and forward quotations for sterling are left to the play of the market, there will be an element of uncertainty which should make speculators unsure of themselves. It is likely too that the new flexibility will make for increased confidence in sterling.

"They might have told me they were going to build an A-bomb plant opposite before they let me buy my own house."

—London Daily Express.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN I finished reading Jack Scott's article in Macleans about the ill-finished little boy in Vancouver, who will never grow up and know normal childhood, my heart was sad. There are some like him in Victoria, poor little fellows, and those of us who have been otherwise blessed should give thanks, and, incidentally, stop staring when these tiny mites come under our view.

The same sense of pity enveloped me when a month ago I read "Wells of Loneliness," that moving story of a woman doomed, to be set beyond society's pale because of what nature did to her. Horatio was right, alas, when he said that much more is amiss than we dream of in our philosophy.

This novel, by the way, I bought across the line, unaware whether it was banned in Canada as it had been in the United States for two decades, but prepared to be challenged when I stepped ashore and, perhaps, forcibly parted therefrom. Praise be, that did not happen. Literary censorship is bizarre. There are books flaunting themselves freely from store windows that are wholly indecent when compared to Radclyffe Hall's sensitively written volume.

Although two days ago I doubted that New Year resolutions would last the day out, I am now wondering if I shouldn't try to prove myself wrong. A sign reading "Do It Now"—hanging near my desk where I couldn't help but see it every minute—would, I'm hoping, improve the tempo of my daily routine. I might then catch up with myself before leaving of an evening full fraught with despair. Perhaps it would be better, though, if I made the sign read, "Do It Tomorrow," for then, perversely, I might do the thing today.

None of the men-of-the-year pickers, I notice, ever pay heed to some of the men without whom the year wouldn't be much worth. Such, for instance, as the postman, the bus driver, the milkman—or any other of the humble folk who cater daily to our ease of mind and body. People like politicians get the plaudits but people like postmen keep society from pulling apart.

What a wonderful feeling it is, inside, when the last of the turkey has been eaten! Plain bread and jam tastes then as it did when I was a tiny tot—like caviar.

At least two young officers have impressed on me in recent days that Kurt Meyer is getting a somewhat raw deal in that he should never have been convicted and that if the shoe had been on the other foot some Canadian generals might easily have stood in his place. If I were to agree it could only be on the assumption that a Canadian court of justice did not play the game but instead deliberately let prejudice warp its judgment. That would cause me profound unease. But if this were so the issue should be faced squarely and resettled. It is not improved by spiriting him out of a Canadian prison and having him reappear under circumstances that imply some queer goings-on.

Well, the New Year jamborees are over for another twelve months and a good job too, possibly, for most of us. Next thing to look forward to is the summer, which is not so far away as you might think. In point of fact, on the basis that there can be no going back, it is closer to us than the New Year's Day that has just gone. Peculiar element this thing we call time, isn't it? Anyway I hope you all had a good time over the holidays and are now ready to buckle on your armor for the tackling in earnest of 1952. You'll probably need it.

Reports From Ottawa

PRINCESS Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will have "played" 17 cities across Canada before the end of January as principals in the four-star National Film Board production "Royal Journey".

I previewed "Royal Journey", and while I am not a movie critic, I do venture the opinion that it is a film that no Canadian should miss.

The stars are naturally the main attraction. The film shows far better than any newsreel of the Royal visit, the varied and enthusiastic welcome the Princess and her husband received from millions of Canadians from coast to coast.

But of great additional interest in the panorama of Canada the film presents: the size of Canada, her lack of homogenity, her infinite variety of sources of strength. They are also the exact opposite when they operate to sectionalize the nation.

What "Royal Journey" does, as a secondary achievement, is show Canada to Canadians, helping to counteract the regrettable fact that only a relatively few people ever have the opportunity to see and know their country from one coast to the other.

"Royal Journey" was an experiment, and a successful one. It was the first feature-length film ever produced by the National Film Board, which hitherto has confined itself to short subjects, mainly documentaries.

Moreover, it is the first feature-length film to use the new Eastman negative-positive color process. The color reproduction is excellent, particularly when you consider that in the whole tour there were only five good days for shooting color. The rest of the time the weather was dull, or raining or snowing. Nevertheless, such is the extreme latitude of this new film that the results compare with what might have been achieved with the best of other color films under far better shooting conditions.

The emotional impact of "Royal Journey" is curious. When L. W. Brockington saw it, this elderly lawyer, orator and confidant of Mackenzie King wept unashamedly. My reaction was mainly one of pride in Canada. And a hard-boiled Rank representative confessed that it made him proud to be an Englishman.

THE debates in the House of Commons are usually pretty heavy going; actually prescribed bedtime reading for anyone suffering from insomnia.

But in the few days of the session preceding Christmas, the debates assumed such an unwonted liveliness that one M.P. referred to the report of the previous day's activities as "our own Joe Miller's joke book."

Like when Works Minister Fournier brought in a bill to amend the Public Works Act, explaining it would "reaffirm our faith in the tender system for public works".

Opposition members laughed derisively. Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre) called out, "That ain't the way I heared it." More grammatically, George Hees (P.C., Toronto-Broadview) interjected "That is not the way I read it."

Reason for their amusement was that the bill, after paying pious tribute to the principle of awarding contracts by tender, went on to give the government wide powers to let contracts without tender.

Music With Meals

(From The Toronto Telegram)

SIR Ernest MacMillan's disclosure that when eating in a restaurant he prefers the clatter of dishes and hum of conversation to music is not to be taken as a decisive argument against music at meals. His business is music, and he may reasonably wish to get a respite at lunch or dinner. He may have an ear, as they say, for the clatter of dishes and the hum, or even the clatter of conversation. Finally, and this is an interesting revelation about so distinguished a citizen, he seems to have found himself frequently in restaurants where the music is provided by juke boxes.

On the other hand, people who don't get as much music in their working hours as he does, may reasonably like to have a little at mealtime. They may even, if they have had too much of the clatter of conversation during the day, desire some protection when they are engaged in the serious business of eating. If they are devotees of the juke box, they are susceptible, seemingly, of a pleasure which Sir Ernest may never have experienced. Their favorite music "sends" them, as they say, and while he may conceivably have been "sent" by a bit of Bach or Beethoven, he and they have almost certainly arrived at different destinations. They keep time to "boogie-woggie" with head and shoulders, body and limbs, while he presumably appreciates with his inner being, keeping time only, for professional purposes, with his baton and his hands.

There are different tastes in music, as Sir Ernest of course knows. The distinguished pianist, Artur Rubinstein, told an interviewer in Toronto of a "drunk" who tried to get into a piano recital. "You can't come in," said the doorman, "you're drunk." "Sure I'm drunk," said the other; "do you think I'd try to get into a piano recital if I was sober?" Would it be possible that if, perish the thought, Sir Ernest ever had enough "taken," he would jig to the juke box like a sixteen-year-old? It would be an interesting experiment.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

A writer reminds us that the wartime inventors never did succeed in producing a ray which would paralyze an internal combustion motor. Our garage at 8 a.m. is the place to look, if anyone still cares.

She was the kind of woman who could be relied on to say the wrong thing. At a dinner party she turned to her neighbor and said: "Can you tell me who that terrible-looking man is over there?"

"I can," he replied. "That's my brother." He thoroughly enjoyed her discomforture during the awkward pause while she racked her brain for something to say to cover her unfortunate remark.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she stammered. "How silly of me not to have noticed the resemblance."

REVENGE

The following anecdote is making the rounds of Middle Eastern bazaars as a commentary on the recent nationalization of British oil properties in Abadan and the subsequent economic crisis in Iran;

A Persian donkey became so angry at his master that he decided to put an end to his wretched existence by jumping over a cliff.

"Stop, stop," the animal's master cried out, "you are going to smash yourself to death."

"That may well happen," the desperate beast answered, "but what is that in comparison with the loss you will suffer?"

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

WHEN a duck feels a quack coming on, it quacks. There is no rhyme or reason to a duck's quacking. Chickens do not speak unless they have something to say. Occasionally, a hen, with an egg on her mind, will go about mildly squawking in an absent-minded way. After she has laid an egg she is likely to burst forth in loud cackles of jubilation. But for the rest of the time, she goes about with few remarks, except to ejaculate briefly over the pleasure of having found a tidbit on the ground.

A hen is a very thoughtful, reasonable conversationalist. But a duck is plain silly. Without reference to anything that is being said by other ducks, and apropos of nothing that is happening around it, it goes about, its stomach barely clear of the ground, quacking soft, quacking loud, and now and then rearing up with wide eyes to engage in a regular fusillade of resounding quacks.

At this season of the year, such ducks as have escaped the oven and are alive, are confined to barracks. You will find them in stables and barns, corralled in one of the unused horse stalls. To lean on the stall railing and observe a group of winter ducks imparts a very comfortable sense of self-respect to you. After all, the public men of the world, who have been quacking away at international meetings now for six full years, aren't as bad as ducks. At least they don't drag their stomachs on the ground.

But the impression seems to be slowly forming in the mind of the average man that there is too much duck-talk going on in the great international assemblies of the world. With the greatest patience, we have been respectfully listening to our betters for quite a long time. What are they saying? Isn't there a faint sort of quack-quack to it?

Out of Joint

(From The Globe and Mail, Toronto)

SCOTLAND Yard's Christmas present to The Times was a charge of corrupt practices. The charge was brought under a 1949 enactment, the Representation of the People Act, which forbids persons other than candidates or party officials to spend money "in any way which might influence an election without authorization from a candidate or party official"; and was based, in this particular case, on a tin company's annual report, published as an advertisement by The Times six days before the recent British election.

The company's report criticized the financial policy of the Labor government then in office. What Scotland Yard argues is that the company, by paying for this advertisement, and the newspaper, by printing it, put themselves in a position to influence the voters. If the argument is successful, those responsible may be fined up to $600 and spend up to one year in jail.

This blanket prohibition of expenditures which might "in any way" influence an election is disturbing. It suggests that an Englishman who buys anybody a drink during an election campaign is engaged in corrupt practises. He is in no better state if he buys only for himself, since a show of stinginess might have more effect on his fellow-voters than a show of generosity. His safest bet is not to buy anything at all—not even a newspaper, since anybody who buys The Times or Telegraph is declaring himself against Labor, just as anybody who buys the Herald or Mirror is declaring himself against the Tories.

But this kind of confusion is only to be expected when lawmakers try to make life easier for themselves with blanket clauses which not only forbid a specific action, but forbid anything that might in any way lead to such an action. We have them in Canada, too; and they have rigged up such a preposterous jumble of legislation that the mere fact of being alive is undoubtedly, under some statute or another, a punishable offense.

What is most disturbing in the London case is the announcement of The Times that it is "preserving absolute silence." It was not by remaining silent that The Times won the honored title of "The Thunderer." We should think that in this case, where freedom of speech is the issue, it would find silence impossible. If The Times is out of thunder, the times are indeed out of joint.

With the Classics

The Blind Boy

O say what is that thing call'd Light,
Which I must ne'er enjoy;
What are the blessings of the sight,
O tell your poor blind boy!—

You talk of wondrous things to see,
You say the sun shines bright;
I feel him warm, but how can he
Or make it day or night?

My day or night myself I make
Whene'er I sleep or play;
And could I ever keep awake
With me 'twere always day.

With heavy sighs I often hear
You mourn my hapless woe;
But sure with patience I can bear
A loss I ne'er can know.

Then let not what I cannot have
My cheer of mind destroy;
Whilst thus I sing I am a king,
Although a poor blind boy.

—CIBBER.

Future Hockey Stars Take Advantage of Free Skating

A little pond at Richmond and Allenby Roads drew a typical gathering of future hockey stars and ice queens yesterday. Bobby Edward, Forbes Street, trips over little Tommy Glenning, Lionel Street, in the midst of hockey practice. Tommy confessed that he had just learned to skate the day before, but was whizzing around the pond like an expert until he came in collision with Bobby. Neither minded the spill judging from their broad grins. Both boys hoped the cold weather would last awhile longer.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Hospital Rate Boost Announced

DUNCAN, Jan. 2—An increase in the basic per diem rate for public ward patients of King's Daughters' Hospital was announced by Ferguson Hoey, administrator, here Wednesday morning.

"Public ward rates will be increased to $10.50 per day from the present rate of $9.74," Mr. Hoey said. "This will be a temporary increase until the final rate is set by the B.C.H.I.S. after all budget demands have been presented by hospitals of the province.

"What the final rate will be will depend on the demands of hospitals, and the amount which the government allocates to the B.C.H.I.S. for its operation.

"The higher rates for 1952 are caused almost entirely by the large increase in wages which have been allowed. Salary schedules account for nearly 70 per cent of all operating costs," Mr. Hoey said, and added that there does not seem to be any way at present in which these mounting wage increases can be controlled.

Town-Planner Shortage Spurs Scholarship Fund

A scholarship fund for a town planning diploma from University of British Columbia will be established by the B.C. Division, Community Planning Association of Canada.

The association will seek to establish a fund because of a shortage of town planners, said Mrs. Grace Shaw of Greater Victoria Regional Town Planning Board.

"Population growth, expansion of cities and towns, have been general throughout Canada though nowhere more spectacular than in this province. This stresses the need for qualified town planners with professional status."

A curriculum in community and regional planning with a professional diploma has been created by U.B.C., she said. The two-year postgraduate course is open to anyone with a bachelor degree in engineering, architecture, geography, economics or sociology.

Donations for the scholarship fund may be sent to Mrs. Shaw.

Growth of B.C. Leads Canada, Census Shows

Preliminary figures on the Canadian census show that the rate of population increase in British Columbia of 41 per cent in the last 10 years exceeds the population growth in any other province, Trade Minister L. H. Eyres reports.

Mr. Eyres said yesterday that a significant change in the population distribution is the fast rate of growth of the urban areas adjacent to larger cities. Vancouver city population increased 24 per cent while other parts of the metropolitan area nearly trebled their population.

Similarly, Victoria city proper grew a moderate 15 per cent while adjacent municipalities increased their population by 66 per cent, Mr. Eyres said.

The New Law
and Your Store
as Seen Through EDDY'S Eyes

The new Anti-Price-Fixing Bill is the topic of the day . . . its effect depends on YOU. Larger stores, and that includes EDDY'S, will offer "leaders" in nationally advertised brands. When prices are broken . . . then you'll find Eddy's following the established policy, "It Can't Be Bought For Less Anywhere" . . . this in addition to consistent value at all times.

Benefit by these offers? . . . of course you will . . . and here at Eddy's we'll welcome you to take advantage of the savings. But don't do so at the expense of the smaller stores that depend on you. Support your community merchant in the purchase of regular items. Closed doors and empty stores will be a blow to our whole economy.

Cash in on the savings the new bill offers you . . . but keep the corner grocer, the district hardware, the community dry-goods in business. These are vital links in our nation's economy.

The United States, says a Washington dispatch, has turned over $39,888,000 to Britain in a move to keep intra-European trade flowing. The payment is a prelude to resumption of large-scale U.S. financial aid to the hard-pressed British government.

A gift of about $300,000,000 is expected to be announced shortly as part of U.S. help to Britain under the mutual security defense program.

Selective Service officials in Chicago made it clear yesterday they had no plans to draft Joe Willie Riley. Main reason is that the real Joe Willie Riley is a mother who lost a son in the Second World War. The mix up began when a thief stole a cheque from Mrs. Riley's mail box, and registered for the draft under her name in order to get identification and cash the cheque.

Six women of Mesa, Ariz., who claim they are wives of a cultist with still two more "wives," were freed on $500 bond each yesterday while police seek the husband, charged with bigamy. Shirley Stops Tacoma Scoring Thrust

Remaining 'Amateur' Enriches Sedgman

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Frank Sedgman wedding gift fund reached the £1,455 mark ($3,244) in the first 24 hours it was opened for public subscription.

The Sydney Daily Telegraph sponsored the drive after Sedgman, the tennis ace and hero of the Australians' 3-2 Davis Cup victory over the U.S., rejected a offer of £40,000 ($89,200) to turn professional.

The fund will provide a wedding present for the 24-year-old star and 21-year-old Jean Spence, who will be married Jan. 30.

When he turned down the pro offer, Sedgman said he intends to remain an amateur until after the 1952 challenge round in December.

LaCree Paces Bottlemen to 3-2 Win; Merchants Score Convincing Victory

HOW THEY STAND

	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Seven-Ups	8	2	1	56	40	17
Merchants	7	2	2	45	35	16
Navy	4	6	1	38	39	9
Civil Service	4	6	1	39	41	9
Army	3	6	2	32	41	8
Individuals	3	7	1	29	44	7

Next games, Jan. 7—Army vs. Individuals; Navy vs. Civil Service; Seven-Ups vs. Merchants.

Commercial league hockey returned to the Memorial Arena last night after a two-week absence with the two pacesetters, Merchants and Seven-Ups playing to form.

Paced by Norm LaCree's three-goal effort in the final period, the Bottlemen edged the youthful Individual Cleaners' squad, 3-2, while Merchants kept at the heels of the leaders with a 5-2 win over Navy.

In the finale, Civil Service dumped Army 3-1, to climb into a third-place deadlock with the Tars.

Individuals bottled up the high-scoring trio of Varga-LaCree-Deutcher for the first two periods and took a 2-0 lead on goals by Fowler and Steve Harris. However, LaCree broke loose in the final frame with a hat trick potting the winner at 17.40 on a pass from Ab Wiebe.

Steve Harris was in uniform for losers for the first time this season and showed he will have to be reckoned for with a few more games under his belt.

Derek McCooey, the Cleaners' young goalie, rose to great heights on several occasions and proved a definite stumbling block to the winners.

In the opener, Merchants took an early lead on a pair of goals by Len-Elphick and held a 3-0 edge at the end of the first stanza. Play roughened up considerably in the last two periods with both teams hitting hard and often. Navy turned on the heat in the last frame, but Ellis barred the door until Standley netted the second Tar marker in the last minute of play.

Army was definitely off-color in its loss to the Servants with forwards lacking cohesion and poor clearing by the defense resulting in at least two goals. Quinn shoved the winners ahead at the 12-minute mark of the first period and Smith, playing his last game for the Servants, increased the lead in the opening minutes of the third.

Vary put the Soldiers back in the game midway through the final period to break Freisen's shut-out, but Corby put the game on ice at the 19.38 minute mark with Army goalie Felix Lange out of the nets.

Next game, tonight: Toronto at Montreal.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (CP).—New York Rangers tonight duplicated their feat of a week ago when they shut out the league-leading Detroit Red Wings 1-0 in a National Hockey League game featured by the brilliant play of both goaltenders.

A crowd of 9,385 saw slim Don Raleigh score at the 12-minute mark of the first period and then watched while the fourth-place Rangers outskated and outchecked Detroit the rest of the way.

Both Chuck Rayner in the New York net and Terry Sawchuk in the Detroit goal were magnificent, turning back thrust after thrust. Sawchuk had by far the most work, making a total of 31 saves to 17 shots stopped by Rayner.

The victory followed much the same pattern as the game here last Wednesday night when the Rangers won by the same score, ending Detroit's unbeaten streak on the road at 15 games.

It was Rangers' second victory in as many nights. Tuesday they scored their first road victory since Bill Cook took over as coach, dumping the Boston Bruins, 4-2.

Montreal Canadiens climbed into a second-place tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday, blanking Chicago Black Hawks, 3-0, at Chicago.

Tuesday marked the New York debut of Jack Stoddard, obtained Dec. 31 from Providence. Stoddard, A.H.L. scoring leader, brought Reds four players—defenseman Pat Egan, forward Zellio Toppazzini and Jean Paul Denis from Rangers farm at Cincinnati and an unnamed player to be delivered next season. Vic Howe and Jean Marie Plante were moved up to Cincinnati from the New York Rovers.

Canadiens rallied around Gerry McNeil, who was playing his second game after the death of his mother in Quebec. It was his first shutout of the season.

Maurice Richard scored what proved to be the winning marker after only 12 seconds of play in the game. The Rocket rammed a penalty shot past goalie Harry Lumley.

The penalty shot, a rarity in present-day hockey, cropped up when officials ruled Jim Peters of the Hawks hooked Bert Olmstead from behind as he attempted a shot on the Chicago goal.

Weill Seeking New Opponent For Joe Maxim

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP).—Matchmaker Al Weill of the International Boxing Club went to work lining up a title bout for light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim today after eliminating Harry Matthews for the present.

Weill said he talked with Jack Hurley, Matthews' manager, by phone in Seattle today. He said Hurley was not interested in the 20 per cent offer for a Feb. 22 title fight.

With Matthews out of the picture, Weill said he was considering Dan Bucceroni of Philadelphia or Jake La Motta, former middleweight king, as an opponent for Maxim. He also said he might try to match Maxim with Sugar Ray Robinson, world middleweight champ, in a big outdoor show next June.

Plans Changed, United to Face Reds Saturday

George Eade, president of Victoria United, announced last night that a second change had been made in the Coast Soccer League schedule.

United, previously scheduled to meet St. Andrews and Firefighters, in that order, will now play North Shore at Royal Athletic Park Saturday in the first match of the second half.

Firefighters were unable to make the trip because of illness in the fire department, which will force team members to remain on duty.

Shores won the first-half title with United second and Saturday's match promises to be a test of strength between the two clubs favored to battle it out again in the final half.

Vancouver Bond Posted—Approval Still to Come

REGINA, Jan. 2 (CP).—The Western Interprovincial Football Union will decide at its annual meeting here Jan. 19 whether it will admit Vancouver for the 1952 season and become a five-club circuit covering the four western provinces.

League secretary Bob Gillies of Regina reported today that Vancouver's formal entry application, accompanied by the $25,000 "good faith" bond requested by the W.I.F.U., was received by the Jan. 1 deadline.

The next move is anybody's guess.

At the last annual meeting the W.I.F.U. unanimously resolved:

"That the Vancouver club's application be ruled acceptable for 1952 subject to proper notification and subject further to posting a bond of $25,000 by Jan. 1, 1952, such bond to be returned to the Vancouver club if it completes the schedule."

That, says sports editor Tom Melville of the Regina Leader-Post, looks rather iron-clad.

The only official comment has come from executives of Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos.

Stampeder president Cec Chesser said he thought the new entry would be all right. But he wondered how Vancouver would get enough players to field a contending club when existing teams already are hard pressed to find suitable Canadian talent.

Vancouver would like to get back its native footballers now with the other clubs. Most, if not all, of them are with Calgary and Edmonton.

Treasurer Ken Montgomery of the Eskimos made it plain Edmonton doesn't want any part of subsidizing the Vancouver club to keep it going.

"If there are no strings attached and we don't have to give them anything, then I'm in favor of it," Montgomery said.

Main opposition to Vancouver's entry appears to be over increased traveling costs. Availability of players also figures prominently.

In the eastern part of the circuit, Regina and Winnipeg unofficial reports circulate that the Roughriders and Blue Bombers would prefer an interlocking schedule with the Big Four in Eastern Canada.

Next game, tonight: Calgary at Saskatoon.

Tacoma Rockets got back to a .500 rating and took over sole possession of fourth place in the P.C.H.L. last night by overpowering the Edmonton Flyers, 6-2, at Tacoma.

Loss left the Flyers in fifth spot, two points behind Tacoma and two ahead of Victoria Cougars, who provide their next opposition here tomorrow. It was Edmonton's sixth loss in seven games on the coast.

Meanwhile, there was news from Victoria coach Roger Leger that there will be some line-up changes for the game against the Flyers following Cougars' mediocre showing in their last home games, culminated by a 3-1 loss to Tacoma on New Year's Day.

MASNICK DUE?

[illegible] of a rumor which has Paul Masnick headed for Victoria to bolster the Cougars. All that is known is that Masnick is no longer in the Buffalo line-up and that if he is re-assigned by Montreal Canadiens, Victoria should be his next port of call.

Acquisition of the former Regina Pats junior star would be of help. Masnick turned pro at the start of last season and got into 43 games with Canadiens and 19 with Cincinnati. He had four goals and one assist in the N.H.L., and five goals and seven assists in the A.H.L.

OVER PLAYER LIMIT

If Masnick did show up it would give the Cougars 16 players exclusive of goalies and put the club over the player limit. It probably would mean that Doug Anderson would be shifted to left wing.

However, out of the supposition stage, Leger stated he would use Bob Ballance tomorrow on right wing on a line with Anderson and Joe Evans and that either Jack McIntyre or Reg Abbott would centre Bob Bowness and Walt Atanas. Abbott will get the call if the shoulder he sprained Tuesday is well enough to allow him to see action.

UTILITY ROLE

Joe Medynski will be used as a utilityman, seeing service on defense with an occasional turn on the forward line.

Cougars just couldn't get untracked Tuesday although they took the lead when Andy Hebenton banged in goal No. 24 in the second period. Rockets were held off later in the period by a good Jim Shirley, who gets the starting assignment in goal again tomorrow, until the breaks went against the Cougars.

LADY LUCK FROWNS

Rockets tied it up when Gordie Kerr's attempted passout deflected in off Shirley's stick and went ahead when Kerr's harmless-looking blue-line shot caromed off a stick past the helpless Victoria netminder. The third goal for the winners came on a clear break with Cougars pressing but unable to beat an often-brilliant Doug Stevenson.

All three Tacoma goals were scored by the Kerr-Wayne Brown-Chuck MacDonald trio, sent out for the express purpose of holding the high-scoring Victoria line of Ed Dorohoy Bob Frampton and Hebenton in check.

Huskies Listed In Third Spot By AP Poll

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP).—Despite convincing victories over Ohio State and Northwestern last week end, Washington Huskies could do no better than retain their third-place standing in the AP poll listing the leading U.S. college basketball teams.

Huskies, who have won nine in a row since an opening two-point loss to Utah, had 20 first-place votes and 688 points. Kansas University, 10-0, is the first-place choice with 753 points and Illinois, 7-0, was second with 739.

Behind Washington are Kentucky, Indiana, New York University, St. Louis, St. John's, Kansas State and St. Bonaventure, in that order.

Three Games May Be Played

Three games are tentatively scheduled by the Victoria and District Football Association this coming week end.

Esquimalt and Victoria City will tangle at Lower Beacon Hill Saturday. On Sunday, Legion and Victoria West are billed to meet at Lower Beacon Hill, while Alcos play host to Duncan Native Sons at a site to be decided later.

All games will start at 2.30 p.m.

Portsmouth Tops League By 1-0 Manchester Win

LONDON, Jan. 2 (Reuters)—Portsmouth, crack South Coast soccer team, was at the top of the first division of the Football League today following a 1-0 New Year's Day victory over Manchester City.

Arsenal and Manchester United, first and second until Portsmouth's win, did not play in the restricted holiday schedule.

Hearts stayed close in Division "A" of the Scottish League, following their New Year's Day triumph over Hibernian with a 2-1 win over Celtic. Hibernian protected its lead with a 5-0 shutout of Third Lanark and is still one point ahead. East Fife lost ground, dropping a 2-1 decision to Aberdeen today after losing to Raith Rovers, 1-0, Tuesday.

Unruly Scot Fans Subdued by Police

GLASGOW, Jan. 2 (Reuters)—Police made several arrests here yesterday when true to New Year's Day tradition, the annual Celtic-Glasgow Rangers soccer match became a battlefield for rival Scottish soccer fans.

Spectators began hurling bottles and storming the Celtic park pitch when the Rangers took a 3-1 lead. Police got the second under control and the Rangers went on to a smashing 4-1 victory.

Clashes between the supporters of the rival Glasgow teams have become an institution in Scottish football. The Celtic team is supported by Irish-Scots and the Rangers by Protestant Scotsmen.

Maryland, Illinois Shatter Tennessee's Claim to Top Spot

New Year's Day bowl football games saw Tennessee's claim to its No. 1 ranking disproved by both the University of Maryland and Illinois.

Tennessee, universally recognized as the top U.S. college team at the end of the regular season, suffered a convincing 28-13 trouncing at the hands of rugged Maryland before 82,000 in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

Victory gave the Terrapins a claim on the mythical title but a few hours later, a hopped-up Illinois team also put in a solid bid by crushing Stanford, 40-7, before a crowd of 98,825 paid in the annual Rose Bowl affair at Pasadena.

In all, 11 bowl games were played New Year's Day, attracting approximately 425,000 fans.

In other ranking games, Georgia Tech rallied with a touchdown and a field goal in the final six minutes to down Baylor, 17-14, in the Orange Bowl at Miami; Kentucky rocked Texas Christian University, 20-7, in Dallas, Texas, and Miami (Fla.) shut out Clemson, 14-0, in the 'Gator Bowl at Jacksonville.

As expected, the Sugar Bowl game, bringing together the Nos. 1 and 3 teams, stole the spotlight.

Powered by Ed (Big Mo) Modzelewski, a tooth-jarring fullback, and halfback Ed Fullerton, Maryland ended a 20-game win streak for the Volunteers with a fine all-round display. Three fumbles paved the way for three touchdowns within seven minutes late in the first quarter and Tennessee could never catch up.

LINE TO SHREDS

Modzelewski ripped the Tennessee line to shreds as he rushed for 153 yards, more than the whole Tennessee team could make, in 48 carries.

At Pasadena, Illinois scored right from the opening kick-off, traveling 76 yards in six plays, but were behind at half time when the convert was missed and Stanford followed with a touchdown drive which ended with Gerry Kerkorian converting to make the score, 7-6.

The score remained at that until well into the third quarter when Illinois intercepted a pass and subsequently scored to go ahead, 13-7. That broke it wide open and the Big Ten champions set a Rose Bowl record by scoring 27 points in the final quarter and made in six in a row for their conference over the Pacific Coast Conference.

However, losers and winners both did well in a financial way with Kentucky and T.C.U. each taking home $123,000 for their share of the gate in the Cotton Bowl game. Illinois and Stanford will get approximately $120,000 each but other conference schools will share in the loot. Maryland and Tennessee will each get about $119,000 and Georgia Tech and Baylor were each guaranteed $90,000.

Montreal Vets Head Parade In Point Race

A look at the National Hockey League's individual scoring list shows Elmer Lach heading the parade with 37 points, made up of nine goals and a loop-leading 28 assists.

Teammate Maurice Richard follows with 35 points, composed of a pace-setting 20 goals and 15 assists.

New York's Don Raleigh scored the only goal last night to take over fourth place one-point behind Howe.

Golf--- Here's How

By SAM SNEAD
Golf's Greatest Player-Teacher

Be careful that you do not turn your left shoulder up and out as you make your back-

swing. Such action not only causes your left forearm to roll at some point (which turns the club-face over) but it brings your shoulder between your eyes and the ball. The illustration shows the effect produced. You are then in an exceedingly difficult position to swing forward into the ball. The result is you lift your head to see the ball. Then, goodby, Mr. Swing.

B.C. Retail Trade Lower in Volume

Estimated retail trade in British Columbia totaled $1,130,000,000 during 1951.

While the total was $80,000,000 greater than that of 1950, the provincial bureau of statistics noted that a "noticeable drop in the physical volume of retail sales during the latter half of the year was a significant change [illegible] business."

[illegible] buyer resistance to high prices as well as federal credit restrictions have had their effects in the same connection, the bureau said.

REVIEW RELEASED

A review of business activity in the province was released yesterday by Trade and Industry Minister [illegible] [illegible] years, the minister said. Preliminary estimates indicate the production value of [illegible] was 12 per cent higher, mining 11 per cent [illegible] 14 per cent and [illegible] per cent higher.

The cost-of-living index kept pace with the wholesale prices [illegible] about 14 per cent in 1951 compared with the previous year.

MORE LABOR

[illegible] was estimated at slightly lower than in 1950.

A steady increase in employment in pulp and paper mills was noted during the year.

Increased employment in shipyards during 1951 was noted. Mr. Eyres said while employment in construction trades remained high through industrial and government construction projects.

EXTERNAL VOLUME

External trade through the province's customs ports was estimated at $760,000,000 in 1951 [illegible] an estimated increase of 22 per cent. Export price levels for Canada increased an estimated 12 per cent, while that for imports was up an estimated 14 per cent.

A vigorous growth in the mining industry is apparent, Mr. Eyres said, with 12 new mills either under construction or planned for the immediate future.

Mr. Eyres concluded that prospects for a continuation of large industrial expansion seem assured in 1952 and general optimism prevails regarding business activity in the province.

Forest Rights Asked by Baikie

VANCOUVER, Jan. 2 (CP).—The president of the Truck Loggers Association in a statement released today said individuals and companies should have the right to acquire forest land on which to grow their own crop of trees.

J. W. Baikie said "the government has implemented a taxation policy applied to privately owned forest land, which is outstanding legislation.

"It is based on a desire to extract the maximum timber production with due respect to sustained yield from a given area of forest land."

This, he said, applies to only seven per cent of the land.

Do Flies Bother You? Earwigs Have Troubles Too

By BRIAN LOUGHNAN

Ever since 1916, when the first European earwig entered the country illegally, irate Canadians have been discovering the insects everywhere but in their ears.

Some people have even used earwigs as an excuse to break the lease, and in at least one case on record a man filled his basement light meter with earwigs, hoping they would somehow clog the mechanism and [illegible].

There is an answer to earwigs. It is Setipennis.

Setipennis, also known as Bigonicheta, is a fly.

NEVER INSIDE

Setipennis is a European parasite, about the size of a house fly, but is hairy and black with grey bands on the body. He is never found in houses.

In fact a Victoria insect authority will bet $5 that no Setipennis will ever be captured inside, whatever housewives say.

However, on the outside, Setipennis is as welcome to an earwig as a three-ton truck. Like The Man Who Came To Dinner, he is what entomologists call "a one-host parasite"—he will accept no substitutes.

Setipennis eats earwigs to the exclusion of all other food like a bachelor with a 38-pound Christmas turkey.

The Dominion government brought Setipennis into Canada in 1934 and colonies of not less than 1,000 were released in parts of the country where earwigs were a nuisance. They are not 100 per cent effective but to an earwig they are bad enough.

Besides suffering from setipennis, earwigs are troubled with B.O.

"Setipennis does not have to drop its eggs right on the earwig," insect experts say. "The fly maggots can find the earwigs by their sense of smell."

One of the delights of becoming truly Canadian was conferred on Newfoundland upon joining Canada as the tenth province, when the government introduced Setipennis to the Newfie earwigs.

The experiment was greeted with mixed reactions. Now some Newfoundlanders [illegible] even the earwigs are fly-bitten.

[illegible]

Napoleon's Descendant in U.S.

The great-great-great grandson of Napoleon and the Empress Josephine, Duke Serge de Leuchtenberg de Beauharnais and his wife, Duchess Olga, are now in the U.S. seeking citizenship. The pair arrived by ship as immigrants, tourist class. The duke said he waited 2½ years in Leipzig, Germany, for the opportunity to enter the United States under the Russian quota. His immigration was sponsored by Prince Serge Belosselsky, a distant relative. Duke Serge fled Russia during the revolution and has been living in France and Germany. —Central Press Canadian.

Tax Dodgers Made to Pay $21,000,000

LONDON, Jan. 2 (NANA-Kemsley news). More than 2,800 British tax dodgers were made to pay nearly $21,000,000 during the last financial year, following an intensive inland revenue drive against fraud and evasion. Of 250 big fraud cases investigated by the special branch, settlements reached produced $6,794,896.16, an average of $26,177.47 a case.

The year's probe into tax dodging resulted in 2,848 cash settlements for a total of $20,989,085.08 — both record figures. The total amount paid by the dodgers to meet liabilities to penalties amounted to $3,875,487.69.

Of the 2,848 cases only 15 per cent were undertaken because of voluntary disclosure by the tax payers concerned. More than 50 per cent were made as a result of the local inspectors' examination of returns and accounts.

Because of difficulties in tracing taxpayers who move from their employment, the inland revenue bureau has written off between $8,400,000 and $9,800,000 due from 800,000 taxpayers.

U.K. Shortage Of Materials Much Improved

LONDON, Jan. 2 (NANA-Kemsley news) — The danger of a raw materials famine which would cut employment and output and hamper the arms drive has been staved off but great care and more exports are vital.

A Board of Trade report said that the position is much easier than could have been expected six months ago and it is hoped that the year will end with bigger stocks on hand than those with which it began, the most serious exceptions being mine props and wool.

The acute shortage of steel has held back demands for other materials used with it and industry has been helped by internal economies particularly in the use of sulphur.

Estimates suggest that the improvement will continue in 1952, but much depends on whether the U.S. recaptures world markets on a large scale and on British exports. The most essential exports—coal, coke, steel and tinplate are among those which it is most difficult to supply.

Murder Count Faces Father

EDMONTON, Jan. 2 (CP) — Casper Gorczak, 32-year-old father of a 13-month-old boy, has been charged with the murder of his 27-year-old estranged wife. The woman, Mrs. Steffi Gorczak, was stabbed Tuesday on a downtown Edmonton street.

Police said Gorczak, who lives at Wanham, Alta., north of Peace River, was charged with murder after he arrived at a police station to give himself up. He was carrying his young son.

Three knife wounds were found on the woman's body. She was stabbed on the arm and in the abdomen before the knife pierced her heart. Police found a seven-inch kitchen-type knife near the scene. It was believed the murder weapon, but no fingerprints were found on it.

Gorczak and his wife had been apart for about seven weeks, police said. The child had been in Gorczak's care. The husband had arrived here from Wanham Sunday.

Celebrants Get Free Ride Home

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Jan. 2 (AP) — "Operation Cocktail" was a huge success, this Adirondack Mountain village reported yesterday. "Cocktail" was the annual police offer to ferry home New Year's Eve merrymakers who feel they are unable to drive. Last night police had five customers, no accidents.

Living Costs High For One So Low

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP) — [illegible] cost of [illegible]

[illegible] eats at [illegible] food. [illegible] British [illegible] for more [illegible] embarrassed to order [illegible] portions. He has the [illegible] plate special each day but pays full price.

Day, who stands three feet seven inches and weighs 59 pounds, must have all his suits tailor made.

"I never get by for less than $125 or $130 a suit these days," he says. "The tailor and I always have the same argument. I argue that he uses less material—about 2½ yards for me, about 4½ for the normal sized man—but it never does me any good."

Because he wants to dress like an adult, not like a child, Day wears custom-made shirts costing between $6 and $10 and custom-made shoes between $25 and $30. He wears boys' gloves and underwear, boys' [illegible] and ties.

Day has to pay full price [illegible] traveling on trains, planes or buses. At home he requires custom-made chairs [illegible] furniture is too uncomfortable. However, he is comfortable in a normal-sized bed.

The so-called little things of life aren't little enough for Day.

He uses ladies' [illegible] and a small [illegible] to shave. [illegible] custom-made money [illegible] use a normal size wallet which bulges out of his small back pocket.

Truman Lays Future Plans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP) — A Democratic congressman quoted President Truman today as saying he hopes to make known before Feb. 6 whether he will run again.

Rep. Wayne L. Hayes of Ohio told reporters after a White House call that he had pointed out to Truman that Feb. 6 is the last day for filing of candidates for delegates from Ohio to the Democratic national convention.

He said Truman told him he "hoped he would be able to work out things so he would know what he is going to do before Feb. 6."

Amateurs Jamming Broadcast

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—A man was accused today of interfering with reception of broadcasts from Radio Station WJZ by operating an unlicensed radio transmitter in an ultra-modern bookmaking set-up.

Edward Chudy, 27, was held in $5,000 bail by United States commissioner Edward Macdonald for hearing Jan. 9 on a charge of operating a radio transmitter without a license while accepting bets.

Officials said Chudy had established two "firsts."

William Kiser, a federal communications commission engineer, said the alleged use of electronic equipment for the relay of telephone conversations was the first of its kind to come to the F.C.C.'s attention.

U.S. attorney Myles J. Lane added that Chudy "undoubtedly will be the first person charged in this district with violating the new internal revenue laws controlling gambling." Federal law requires a $50 tax stamp fee for bookmakers.

Lane said Chudy and Fred Fisher, 33, a former policeman, rented a Lexington Avenue apartment and tapped a telephone with wires attached to a radio transmitter. He said the radio transmitter relayed messages to another Lexington Avenue apartment where bets were received.

Lane said complaints concerning interference with reception of WJZ radio programs led to the investigation.

Prowler-Killer Released

DEMING, N.M., Jan. 2 (INS)—An Illinois tourist who shot and killed a man he said was attempting to rob him with a toy pistol near Deming was released today and continued his journey to Phoenix, Ariz.

The shooting victim was identified as William G. Maddox, of Phoenix, who was killed near a house-trailer occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gorisek, of Lisle, Ill. The Goriseks had parked by the highway about 10 miles west of Deming.

Details of the shooting, as related to Sheriff Ernest Irwin by Gorisek were:

Maddox and a companion approached the house-trailer waving pistols. Gorisek fired through a window, killing Maddox. The companion fled in a car parked nearby. Gorisek flagged a motorist who summoned officers.

The sheriff said Maddox had been carrying a toy pistol. The sheriff's office began efforts to trace Maddox' background in an attempt to learn identity of his companion.

Truman Seeks Changes In Tax-Collecting Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—President Truman called today for "a sweeping reorganization" of the scandal-ridden internal revenue bureau. He said he wants to make it "a blue ribbon civil service career organization."

The two major steps proposed by the president are:

To put nearly all the bureau's top jobs under civil service.

To create "a strong, vigorous inspection service . . . completely independent of the rest of the bureau."

Truman's plan would replace the present 64 offices of district collectors of internal revenue (some states have more than one collector) with "not more than 25 district offices, each headed by a district commissioner."

Only one official in the whole bureau—the top man—would be appointed by the President, with confirmation by the Senate. All the others would have to come from the merit system of civil service.

WRONGDOING

All 64 collectors now are appointed by the President, usually on the recommendations of back-home politicians. Some have fallen from grace; three have been indicted on charges of wrongdoing in office.

Truman said his move is one of a series of steps he plans to take to protect the government "from the insidious influence-peddlers and favor-seekers, and to expose and punish any wrong-doers."

He said he will propose that congress pass a law providing for the reorganization he has in mind for the revenue bureau.

Shaken by a succession of scandals involving bribery, favoritism and other irregularities, the revenue bureau is still under investigation by a House of Representatives sub-committee in addition to the wholesale ousters of bureau officials.

MORE FIRINGS

Even as Truman's action was reported, Commissioner John B. Dunlap said that 166 persons were fired or forced to resign or retire last year. His figure indicated 53 more firings or forced resignations not previously announced.

The President's statement today indicated that he may persevere in the formation of a non-partisan commission to direct a federal house-cleaning in advance of the presidential election this fall.

Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy of New York, a Democrat, was reported last month to be slated as the head of such a commission, but later reports were that Murphy had decided not to take the assignment.

Union Federation To Give Decision

VANCOUVER, Jan. 2 (CP)—The Shipyard General Workers' Federation may give a decision on the Myron Kuzych case later this month, it was reported today.

Kuzych has appealed to the federation against his expulsion from the boilermakers' union in 1945 because he opposed closed shop rules of the union.

He carried his case to the Privy Council in London where the judges ruled he should have appealed his expulsion to the federation before resorting to the courts.

Following the Privy Council judgment, he filed an appeal with the federation, the boilermakers' parent union.

Uncle Wiggily Story - - -

By Howard Garis

Mr. Whitewash, the jolly, big, white polar bear, shuffled over closer to Uncle Wiggily. The rabbit gentlemen had hopped up Santa Claus Hill to pick out a Christmas tree. There he had met Mr. Whitewash who had just arrived for his usual Christmas visit.

"Did you say, Wiggy," Mr. Whitewash asked, "that you heard someone coming up the hill?"

"That's what I said, Whitie," answered Mr. Longears.

"Maybe those three foxes are coming after you," said the polar bear. "If it's them—"

"No, it isn't the foxes," said Uncle Wiggily, who was peering through the many evergreen trees and looking toward the bottom of the hill. "Those foxes would never dare to come after me when they see you."

"But who is coming up the hill?" Mr. Whitewash wanted to know.

"I can't see very well on account of the trees," answered the rabbit gentleman. "I wonder if it could be Nurse Jane?" No, she was washing the breakfast dishes when I hopped away from the bungalow. Oh, now I see who it is!"

"Who is it?" asked Mr. Whitewash.

"It is two of my little rabbit twins," answered Uncle Wiggily. "Jingle and Jangle. I hope nothing has happened at my bungalow so that Nurse Jane had to send Jingle and Jangle after me."

"I hope the same," said Mr. Whitewash. Then Uncle Wiggily called:

"Hi, Jingle and Jangle! What are you doing here on Santa Claus Hill?"

"We came after you," answered Jingle.

"Did Nurse Jane send you?" Mr. Longears inquired.

"Oh, no!" replied Jangle. "We came all by ourselves, didn't we, Jangle?"

"Yes," answered the other little twin rabbit. "Nurse Jane doesn't know we are here."

"Why aren't you at school?" was Uncle Wiggily's next question. "That's what I am wondering."

"The Lady Mouse Teacher is wondering the same thing," said Jingle. "Ha! Ha!"

"Ha! Ha!" Jangle also laughed.

"Do you mean to tell me," asked Uncle Wiggily in his most stern and severe voice, "do you mean to tell me that you two little rabbits started for Hollow Tree School and then didn't go?"

"That's what happened, Daddy," answered Jingle. "We didn't go to school today."

"Why not?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know. "Do you have the sniffle-snuffles and are your throats sore?"

"We have no sniffle-snuffles," said Jingle.

"And our throats aren't sore," said Jangle.

"Then why didn't you go to school?" asked Mr. Longears.

"We started for school," said Jangle. "But we saw you hopping up Santa Claus Hill, Daddy, so we followed you. We wanted to see what you were after."

"Ha, Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Well, I cannot be angry with you little twins, though you should have gone to school. And what I came up Santa Claus Hill to get, you will find out later. But I am sorry to have you miss school."

"It isn't too late for them to go to school, Wiggy!" said the big polar bear. "I will ride them to school, and you with them, on my back. They will be in time. Here we go!"

You can imagine how surprised was the Lady Mouse Teacher when Jingle, Jangle and Uncle Wiggily came to Hollow Tree School riding on the back of the jolly polar bear.

"You twins are just in time," said Miss Mouse. "Are you and Mr. Whitewash coming to school, Uncle Wiggily?"

"I would like to," said Mr. Whitewash. "But I must see about building a snow igloo house to live in while I am here. Come on, Wiggy, help me build my igloo."

"You can't build a snow igloo now!" said Uncle Wiggily. "And in the story tomorrow I will tell you more about the snow igloo. But please ask the rubber boots, when they come in late at night, not to dance on the front steps and wake up the umbrella."

... Towing remains unchanged, it was stated.

Fred S. McKean, managing director of Straits, now becomes managing director of Nanaimo Towing as well.

Gordon S. Lott, former chief dispatcher for Straits, becomes resident manager of Nanaimo Towing at Nanaimo, while Mr. Ian M. MacLeod remains Vancouver manager of the firm.

New assets coming under joint direction include 15 diesel tugs of 100 to 500 h.p., four flat scows, a derrick scow, and considerable salvage equipment.

Captain Higgs has operated a fleet of tugs and scows and salvage units out of Nanaimo for more than 16 years. In June, 1929, he incorporated Gulf Islands Transportation Company operating out of Sidney and in April, 1935, he changed his headquarters to Nanaimo, changing the company name to Nanaimo Towing Ltd.

A great number of tugs, fishing craft and pleasure vessels have been salvaged or aided in distress by this company. The company also played its part in wartime activities, participating in hauling materials for the construction of the air strip at Tofino.

TOO TOUGH

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Nylons are really tough, according to J. Gill, who operates a commercial compost scheme. He has banned nylons, along with plastics, because they will not decompose under the processes that decompose such things as metal shavings and tinfoil.

TICKLE-TOES

"Let's," I sed, "step out & romance, let's go down to the supper dance?" The look she threw, more than a caress, I knew she'd got the new black dress. Black velvet it is, one shoulder aflame, velvet does wonders for ANY dame. Makes 'em more slinky, yet soft to the touch, yes I like black velvet ... very much. Our daughters excited that Mummie ... one another coyly glancing; Trudie gathered junk that sparkled & jangled, so "Mummie" was loaded & jungle-spangled. Again & again to her room in a stir to finally come up with her prized "Ben Hur" I just slung, on my blue gabardine, 40 seconded "Vitalis" all over my bean. Into the car we made a fast dive, "she'd" switched the "Ben Hur" to "Chanel No. 5." On the Causeway we parked other cars by the score, then we ran all the way & revolved thru the door. To a corner table the man led the way, thru the "Tickle-toe" music, 'twas all very gay. My bones felt tingly, my skin kinda loose. "Are YOU," sed the man, "Maurice Barley or Bruce?" "I'm Maurice." I smiled my head in a bubble, "& mother says, I caused the least trouble." We sed "hello" to another pair, "she" draped her coat on the back of her chair. "I've always loved it her," she excitedly sed, "from the very first time I rested my head. The same soft lights, the tables of white. "You look," I beamed, "pretty smooth to-nite." Her toes started tapping like Betty Grable; we zig-zagged our way thru all the tables. "Three Little Words," that quickie was playing, soon WE too, were hopping & swaying. "Hi," we called to many we saw, like Bob & his wife ... gorgeous Nellie Shaw. "That music's divine," the velvet breathed, as near the violins we wiggled & weaved. I gripped a little tighter the former Miss Lake, but I had to let up, my arm got the ache. Came intermission, she fluttered her eyes. I dove in the beef, the peas & French frys, Pineapple stuff we had for dessert, then over the coffee I tried to flirt. "Fun ... don't you think, a table for 2, like being in Paris, a la rendezvous?" Again the music & off I was dragged. I surprised myself ... was not the least fagged. 'Twas a waltz this time (all muted the house), the magic being woven by Johann Strauss. Some low throaty notes Len Acres struck, then the "Blue Danube," & all hearts amuck.

The gals nestled closer, reserve quickly fled, the men a death-grip, staring straight ahead. I, too, was all flustered, didn't think I'd survive, it got harder to breathe in the Chanel No. 5. Then it was over, & from out of the heat, again we were running ... down Government Street. A gust of snow was blown round our feet, the "Buildings" all twinkled, the scene was complete. On the way home, she softly did hum (slowly & Strauss) "Da ... da ... de ... dee ... da ... tum tum ... tum tum, da da de de tum, tum tum," etc., and if you repeat, and don't look for faults, you'll know it could be ... The Blue Danube Waltz. A red light sed Stop, but we couldn't be seen, so I leaned closer ... WENT AHEAD ON THE GREEN.

New Year Fete At Sooke Hall Well Attended

SOOKE, Jan. 2—New Year's Eve dance sponsored by Sooke Athletic Club in Sooke Community Hall drew over 400 fun-seeking people who danced to the Sooke orchestra music until the small hours of the morning.

Mrs. William Cains, general convener, was supported by Mrs. George H. Jones, as refreshment convener and a large number of assistants in arranging the very successful affair.

Decorations on a Yule theme, and the release of multi-colored balloons, confetti and noise makers at midnight, together with the jolly singing of Auld Lang Syne, ushered in the new year in traditional style.

Corporal Better

Corporal Allan Quinn of the R.C.M.P. sustained back injuries but is reported to be in good condition in a Mainland hospital after an automobile accident on the King George Highway near Cloverdale recently. Quinn was stationed at Sooke for six years before being moved to Burnaby two years ago. On leaving Sooke he was honored with an Al Quinn night by his many friends there.

Sift 2 cups sifted Kitchen Craft Flour with 1 tsp. salt. With a fork or pastry blender, cut in ⅔ cup shortening until the particles are size of small peas. Add about 6 tbsp. water, a few drops at a time, using only enough water to hold mixture together. Toss lightly to distribute evenly. Press gently into a ball. Allow to rest 15 minutes. Line a 9" pie plate with the pastry. Fill with meat-loaf mixture (using 2 lbs. ground beef) smoothing the top. Roll remaining pastry into a 9" round. Cut into narrow wedges and place on top of pie. Bake meat pie in a very hot oven (450°F.) for 15 minutes, then reduce to moderate heat (375°F.) for 30 more minutes. Remove pie from oven, add freshly cooked peas and a floweret of pimiento.
